Balloonist Dies In Fall After Setting Altitude Record

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Navy medical officer soared higher than man has ever gone in a balloon—113,500 feet up—and then met a tragic death in a 25-foot fall from a rescuing helicopter.

Lt. Cmdr. Victor G. Prather, 34, of Bethesda, Md., fell backward from the sling of the helicopter that had picked him up Thursday in the Gulf of Mexico after an almost perfect landing. He died aboard the carrier Antietam 7½ hours after he and Cmdr. Malcolm Ross, of Washington, soared to their record high.

Ross was lifted to the carrier by one of three hovering rescue helicopters without injury. He stood on the deck awaiting his companion's rescue.

Sharing Drama of Flight

Hours earlier they were sharing the drama of the record flight, 21½ miles above the gulf. Shortly before reaching maximum altitude, Ross, the pilot, had radioed the carrier that he could see the Atlantic Ocean on the other side of Florida.

Asked on another transmission how things were going, Prather, father of two children, replied: "Things are great. Come on up." The huge plastic balloon had been launched from the carrier's flight deck off the mouth of the Mississippi River at 7:08 a.m. (Central Standard Time). It reached its maximum altitude 2 hours and 36 minutes later at a point about 136 miles south of Mobile, Ala.

The carrier followed the balloon as it drifted down across the gulf on a southeasterly course. It landed on the gulf at 4:05 p.m. having run into trouble on descent. When the balloonists had dropped to an altitude of about 40,000 feet the rate suddenly and alarmingly had increased to 1,000 feet a minute, according to information relayed to Washington from the carrier.

Jettisoned Everything

Prather and Ross jettisoned everything, a Navy spokesman said, including their radio and a drag line which would have been a key facility in an attempt to land aboard the carrier. Loss of the drag line made the planned landing on the carrier impossible, the Navy said.

Navy officials reported the gondola landed on the water "almost perfectly" and that the huge balloon detached itself as it had been designed to do. While the gondola floated on the surface, about 1½ miles from the Antietam, the three helicopters raced toward the balloonists.

As Prather was being hoisted into the helicopter he fell from the sling. He was encumbered with a spacesuit and instrumentation weighing about 25 pounds when dry.

A Navy statement said Prather fell backward into the water and went under when the pressurized suit apparently became water-logged. The accident occurred about 140 miles south-southeast of Pensacola, Fla.

Prather was pulled back to the still floating gondola in a few minutes by a Navy skin diver, who had dropped from one of the helicopters. Then, Prather was removed to the carrier in a motorized whale boat. He was unconscious when pulled from the water and apparently never regained consciousness before dying aboard the carrier about an hour and 20 minutes after being pulled from the water.

An autopsy was begun at the Naval Air Station at Pensacola, Fla.

Castro Foes In Terror Grip

Thousands Rounded Up By Authorities

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Reports of mass terror against opponents of Fidel Castro's regime are seeping out of Cuba despite a curtain of total censorship on news communications and mail.

These reports tell of suffering among thousands of detainees rounded up in the wake of the abortive anti-Castro invasion of mid-April. They tell of thousands inhumanely crowded, without food and sanitation, in detention centers; of uprisings born of desperation among the prisoners; bloodhounds and police dogs used to threaten the prisoners.

It is now confirmed that the regime has imposed complete censorship on all outgoing news messages, which must be cleared through the chief of telecommunications. Mail censorship, long in existence behind the scenes, now is out in the open. Huge piles of mail await censorship at the office of the telecommunications chief, apparently in charge of that job, too.

This is the story of what has been happening to thousands suspected of opposing the regime, as pieced together from the reports from the island:

Between 25,000 and 40,000 Cubans and foreigners, including a number of Americans, were rounded up in Havana alone after the invasion. The detainees were herded into requisitioned build-

'Eternity' Before Blast-Off

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr., dressed in his silver space suit, started for the launch pad early today for a history-making rocket flight into space.

Shepard, 37, a blue-eyed New Englander, stepped from his special quarters at 3:58 a.m. Eastern Standard Time and walked through a flood-lit lane formed by newsmen, base workers, and security officers.

Eleven paces from the door of hanger "S", Shepard, a Navy commander, climbed into a white and blue van, attended by his doctor and various technicians. The big vehicle promptly drove off toward the launching site about 3½ miles away.

This was Shepard's first public appearance since he and his backup pilot, Marine Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr., 39, were put under wraps last weekend.

The first scheduled space flight by an American was postponed last Tuesday because of bad weather and Shepard never appeared at that time.

Though the event was no less epochal than last Tuesday, there was less tension and expectancy today among the small band gathered outside hanger "S". This was because everybody knew the identity of the space trail-blazing astronaut.

The first U.S. space explorer was bound for his 115-mile-high trip into near space 23 days after Soviet Air Force Maj. Yuri Gagarin orbited the earth in a 5-ton space craft.

On this momentous day in his life—and in history—Shepard was awakened at 1:05 a.m. In his

Alan B. Shepard Jr.
Minus 3, Minus 2, Minus 1 --- double deck bunk on the second floor of hanger "S", backup pilot Glenn was roused at the same time. They had retired at 10:30 p.m. without sedation after watching television for a while.

First came a shower and a shave. Then Shepard donned long white underwear with big spongy patches sewn at the seat, along the thighs and elsewhere to allow circulation of air next to the body.

For about three days before the flight, the pilots had been living on a low-waste diet.

The menu for the final pre-shot breakfast: Filet mignon wrapped in bacon, two poached eggs, dry toast and orange juice. After breakfast, the space man and his backup walked a few steps down a gallery to the medical room where the physical examination started at 2:25 a.m.

There, the astronauts' personal physician, Air Force Lt. Col. William K. Douglas, and his assistant, Maj. Carmal Jackson, checked the men's eyes, ears, nose, throat, heart and lungs. They checked reflexes and took a blood sample.

Dr. Douglas commented "as usual, the two are in superb physical condition."

After the checkover, Douglas and his medical aides attached biological sensors to tattoo marks on Shepard's body. These sensors, transmitting signals to ground monitors, indicate how the astronaut reacts to the heavy stresses and weightlessness encountered in his flight.

This done at 2:50 a. m. Shepard — still in his underwear — moved next door to the pressure suit room.

Here, suit technician Joe W. Schmitt, a slender man from O'Fallon, Tex., helped the astronaut into the special space uniform. This is a rubber garment coated with a silver spray intended to serve as an additional heat buffer and radiation shield.

Topping the outfit was a white helmet much like those worn by football players, only bigger. The helmet is fitted with transparent plastic face piece and attaches to a metal ring around the neck of the suit.

Shepard Rockets 115 Miles Up, Is Recovered Safely

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The United States first space man, Alan B. Shepard Jr., rocketed briefly across the threshold of space today and landed safely after a pulsating 5,100-mile-an-hour journey that carried him 115 miles high and 302 miles down range.

The pickup occurred at 9:53 a.m. (EST), 19 minutes after the Redstone booster rocket blasted off from Cape Canaveral at 9:34 a.m.

The flight reached an altitude of about 115 miles and lasted 15 minutes.

The 37-year-old Navy commander's good condition was evident throughout the flight when Shepard reported such things as:

"What a beautiful sight!" in describing the earth below.

He radioed back that he could see the outline of the entire East Coast of the United States.

Throughout the rest of the journey, he said everything was OK.

Ships, planes and helicopters raced to attempt recovery of the astronaut when his cabin plopped into the water.

Shepard immediately was transferred to the aircraft carrier Lake Champlain, flagship of a seven-vessel recovery fleet.

Crewmen of the Lake Champlain were told not to speak to the astronaut. Doctors and psychologists want him to tell his story without having it colored by ideas conveyed to him on his return.

Back in Space Race
The successful shot puts the United States back into the space race with Russia.

Soviet scientists copped the first big prize 23 days ago when they boosted the world's first space traveler, Yuri Gagarin, into a 188-mile high orbit and returned him to earth 108 minutes later.

Today's suborbital shot does not match the Russian achievement but is a major step toward orbiting an American which the National Space Agency plans to do later this year.

The purpose of today's flight was to determine if man can perform useful chores in space.

Shepard proved conclusively it could be done.

He reported constantly throughout the flight that he was able to do certain tasks, such as pushing levers and buttons and operating manual controls.

All the way through he told the control center at Cape Canaveral by radio that everything was okay.

During the flight, Mercury officials said that Shepard was reporting facts and figures just like a test pilot would.

Test is Terminated

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration made this official announcement: "Test No. 108 is terminated. This was the pioneer U.S. man in space flight. The Mercury spacecraft is on the deck of the aircraft carrier Lake Champlain and the helicopter is about to land. Shepard is about to come out of helicopter."

Shepard's reports on the "beautiful view" came only three minutes following launch, after a periscope in the capsule protruded to give the space pilot a view of the earth.

Shepard had entered his space cabin at 5:18 a.m. (EST), after a final medical examination and a breakfast of filet mignon, scrambled eggs, sherbet and peaches.

He remained there 4 hours, 18 minutes, during a countdown that had been delayed several times by technical troubles and weather.

Reds Focus On S. Viet Nam

Prospect Exists of Prolonged Struggle

WASHINGTON (AP)—The major Communist drive for control of Southeast Asia is reported shifting from Laos to South Viet Nam, with the prospect of a prolonged struggle. Both the Soviet Union and the United States are involved to some degree.

Even before a cease-fire in Laos is nailed down, there is renewed talk in official quarters here of the possible use of U. S. forces in Southeast Asia primarily because of the determined Communist effort through guerrilla warfare to overthrow the South Viet Nam government of Premier Ngo Dinh Diem.

The issue is a matter of grave concern within the administration and could be one of the subjects up for discussion at a National Security Council meeting at the White House today.

President Kennedy has an opportunity at a news conference later in the day to set forth his views on the newly developing crisis.

Kennedy conferred Thursday night with Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Fulbright said after the meeting that in his judgment the administration stands ready to offer direct support to Diem's forces if that becomes necessary to block Red conquest of the Southeast Asian country.

Fulbright also endorsed the use of U. S. military force, if necessary to support either South Viet Nam or Thailand, which is a U.S. ally in the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization. Both countries border Laos.

Two Drivers Cited After Road Mishaps

Two drivers were cited for traffic violations following two highway mishaps Thursday afternoon.

Considerable damage was sustained by a truck-trailer and two cars involved in a mishap on Rt. 7, three and one-half miles south of Rogers, at 12:30 p.m.

Highway patrolmen said John W. Brown, 44, of East Liverpool stopped his northbound car on the highway at the command of a road repair flagman and the auto was struck in the rear by the truck operated by Robert G. Shockley, 31, of Freemont.

The impact of the crash then sent the truck left of center into a southbound auto being driven by Frank Lewis, 52, of Rogers.

Shockley was cited by patrolmen for failure to stop at an assured clear distance.

In the other mishap, occurring at the intersection of County Road 400 and Township Road 900 two miles west of Rt. 62, at 9:40 p.m., Philip A. Groves, 19, of 853 Spring Ave., pulled his southbound car out of the township road into the side of a westbound auto being operated by Carlos R. Nutter, 25, of RD 1, Salem.

Considerable damage was sustained by both vehicles, patrolmen said. Groves was cited for failure to yield the right of way.

Issues Voting Is Unchanged

Official Count By Election Board Made

The official canvass of returns from special elections held in conjunction with Tuesday's primary confirmed the defeat of a school bond issue and a village operating levy in Lisbon and the victory of a $356,000 bond issue and companion half-mill tax levy to finance a new high school in Southern Local School District.

The official count showed four more affirmative votes on the Lisbon School District's $350,000 bond issue and a loss of three negative votes, but the changes were not enough to alter the defeat.

The official count showed an affirmative vote of 726, compared with 722 in the unofficial returns, and a negative vote of 498, a drop of three from the 501 shown in the unofficial count.

The Lisbon issue required a 60 per cent affirmative vote for approval. On the basis of the official count, it lost by eight votes, as 734 would have been required for the approval. The total vote on the issue was 1,225.

The official count on the Lisbon village 3-mill operating levy showed a drop of four in the affirmative vote for a new total of 491 and a gain of three in the negative vote, for a new total of 438. It required a 55 per cent vote for approval on the basis of official returns, the issue lost by 20 votes.

It would have needed 511 for approval. In the unofficial canvass, the issue apparently was defeated by 16.

Despite changes in the count on the Southern Local proposition, there was no change in the result. The affirmative vote dropped by

Judge Asks Probation Probe for Defendant

LISBON — A probation investigation has been ordered by Common Pleas Judge Raymond S. Buzzard for Robert Earl Wolfe, 37, of Salem, who changed his plea to guilty to a charge of burglary of the home of Martha and William Sprague, Wellsville, on June 19, 1960, in which a television set was taken.

Wolfe's case was listed to be the first in trials of defendants who pleaded no guilty at arraignment day April 17.

The criminal case of Philip Regis Monac of Midland, Pa., accused of the theft of a tool box valued at $100 from the home of George Brand of East Liverpool on Jan. 21, will begin Monday instead, Prosecutor G. William Brokaw said.

LISBON — Charles G. McKnight, 35, of New Waterford, was bound over to the Grand Jury Thursday by County Judge Herbert Arfman at East Palestine on a charge of burglarizing the home of Herman (Dutch) Esterly of New Waterford Sunday morning.

McKnight allegedly took a gun, knee boots and a quantity of beer. He is confined in the county jail in lieu of $1,000 bond.

POWER

It takes a lot of Go-Power to make our economy go . . . and grow. Go-Power provided by the profits of companies large and small. Profits help companies expand and improve their competitive position so they can provide more jobs and more job security. Profits also pay company shareholders for the investment of their money and encourage further investment which makes for still more jobs.

But how much profit is available to keep our economy going . . . and growing? A survey of 47 companies doing business in the Mahoning and Shenango Valleys, and providing the majority of our area's employment, shows that the profit on every dollar they took in was a little less than five cents.

A nickel's worth of Go-Power. Not much is it, when the economic future of our community depends on it?

Once More We're Being Ignored

Strenuous objections should be made immediately by Salem and Columbiana County interests over State Highway Department Division Four's proposal to build a new four-lane highway in northern Ohio that would accommodate relocated Routes 62, 224 and 14.

Columbiana County, and Salem included, would be totally ignored if such a plan were adopted.

Carl Campbell, deputy director of Division 4 at Ravenna, announced that his office had proposed the joint facility in a recommendation to state highway department headquarters in Columbus.

SALEM, WHICH APPEARS to be neither fish nor fowl as far as the State Highway Department is concerned, sits in the northeastern corner of Division 11's territory and lies just outside Division 4. The state spends some funds (taxpayers' money) on road work here, but not too often.

A serious objection to the Division 4 plan is that it would provide another interstate highway in northern Ohio and within 25 miles of the Ohio Turnpike which it would parallel. By contrast there's no interstate highway south of here until you reach Cambridge.

If Division 4 is besieged with demands for improvements to Route 224 it would do better to repair the existing facility, rather than urge a grandiose project that would be done at the expense of Salem and other communities in this corner of the state. Our needs also must be served.

U. S. ROUTE 62 has been one of Salem's major highways for years and that is why the campaign for its retention was spontaneous when the Chamber of Commerce rallied officials of other towns and county officials at a "keep Route 62 in the county" meeting at Lisbon several weeks ago.

State Highway Department chief engineers took back with them resolution-petitions urging state action in relocating Route 62 just south of Salem in Columbiana County.

We hope that State Highway Director Everett S. Preston, who didn't get to the meeting, was impressed by the 3,000 signatures on the local petitions. If he wasn't we'll knock on his door in Columbus.

It is imperative that "62" be kept in Columbiana County.

Old Soldiers Never Forget

Gen. Eisenhower is represented as feeling that anybody who had studied the battle of Gallipoli would have known better than to risk the kind of invasion that failed in Cuba.

He explains he is speaking from a military standpoint only; that this is the viewpoint of an old soldier who remembers what he learned in War College and during the years when he was planning strategy for the defense of the United States.

Like other former presidents and most political officials, the general thinks it is unbecoming to criticize President Kennedy because the Cuban invasion proved unsuccessful. But it should be permissible to remember in this connection that President Kennedy as commander-in-chief of the armed forces of the United States can be second-guessed on military decisions.

In his military role he either should know, himself, about the precedents that guide military planning, or he should ask the Joint Chiefs of Staff to guide his military decisions. If it is assumed that he did have the benefit of Joint Chiefs counsel, this has escaped the attention of Gen. Eisenhower, who is represented as wondering if Mr. Kennedy asked his military advisers what they thought about the Cuban invasion.

It is recalled in this connection that the Dardanelles campaign and the battle of Gallipoli in World War I were associated closely with the thinking of a headstrong British naval secretary, who disregarded the counsel of elderly lords of the Admiralty and sustained a setback to his political prestige that lasted until Britain turned to him as a last resort when the Nazis were threatening to swarm across the English Channel. Winston Churchill was never allowed to forget the failure of the Dardanelles campaign.

There is, in fact, no lack of comparisons, because it has occurred to others that President Kennedy also can be likened to Sir Anthony Eden, whose decision to launch an attack on Suez backfired so tragically that his long-awaited prime ministry turned into bitter fruit. He never recovered from the blow to his prestige.

'You Monsters Hold Your Fire'

It is not so hard, after all, to get the hang of a cease-fire order in Laos. We've had the same thing here for generations.

At one time everybody banged away with guns at everybody else, the way it is in television westerns, only not so glamorous. When things got so bad no one felt safe, they issued a cease-fire order.

Everybody turned in his gun. That was the regulation. The only people permitted to carry guns any more were responsible for enforcing the cease-fire order.

And what happened? The only people who actually ceased firing were the ones who obeyed the cease-fire order. They couldn't shoot even if they felt like it because they had turned in their guns.

But some people who had no intention of obeying a cease-fire order turned in the guns they weren't planning to use. They kept the rest.

They estimated that their power to terrorize people would increase in direct ratio to the decrease in the total number of guns. The better enforced the cease-fire order was, the stronger they would become, because they would be the only people with the will to use firepower to gain their own way.

To this day that has continued to be true. The disarmament of the rest of us gave the gunman, the lawbreaker, the plugger, the hoodlum and the racketeer a special hold over the public. When the police cannot cope with their power, the effect is to subsidize the wielders of illegal power.

That will be the result of a cease-fire order in Laos. The wielders of illegal power will be getting rid of most of the home-grown resistance to their hoodlum antics. They should have a ball.

Once Over

Educators charge kids are so wrapped up in TV that few pay any attention to nursery rhyme characters that once gripped them. All aboard for a 1961 version of Mother Goose:

Little Miss Tuffet sat on a tuffet
Eating of curds and whey;
A sponsor (none bigger) said "Curds help your figure . . .
Get 'Curdy-Tabs' — large size—TODAY."

Jack and Jill went up the hill
But never made the grade;
It seems that they were in the way
(Bang! Bang!) of Shotgun Slade.

Little Boy Blue come blow your horn,
The Earps are in the meadow, the Hitchcocks in the corn;
(Where is the boy who is tending the sheep?
Watching Eliot Ness jail another big creep.)

There was a man in our town and he was wondrous wise
He jumped into his TV set and got nine "Private Eyes";
Now when he saw what he had done, his top he loudly blew
And went for the detergent plugs, exclaiming, "Girls, what's new?"

Old Mother Hubbard went to the cupboard
For bones for her doggie so cute;
She was quickly displaced by a plug for toothpaste —
And the dog was forgotten "to boot."

THE REPUBLICANS may be trying to get Bob Wagner out of City Hall and into the east of "Riverboat." These conflict-of-interest battles are going pretty far and it could be that the State Investigating Commission will hold the mayor guilty of it on a claim he asked Hudson River excursion boat musician to play "The Good Old Summer Time" when duty required him to ask only for "East Side, West Side, All Around the Town."

What's wrong with friends of mayor hiring presidential campaign headquarters to boost his chances for vice presidential nomination in political campaign? Mr. Wagner could have done just as well in the hotel elevator, unless somebody says the elevator boy was paying for the electricity. This column's hunch is that the matter will boom-erang and get Wagner a third term the easy way. There are a lot of New York voters who are sentimental about summer excursion boats, hot afternoons on the Hudson, Bob Wagner's father, Yorkville tunes and who resent any move to follow operation on the mayor's ear by a demand for his head.

NEW YORK subways are using additional signs featuring pictures of animals which it urges riders not to imitate. How about some jingles:

A hippo, shown a subway sign,
Exclaimed "To ride there ain't my line
Although I have the jungle touch,
A subway ride is far too much."

If in it I should ever ride
I'd have a most protective hide
But, even so, the prospect's grim . . .
I'd bleed quite freely getting in.

The elephant is better suited
For subway travel loudly hooted
It blocks the doorway rather roughly
Like humans do, but not so gruffly.

The rhino rides and never knows
When someone's standing on his toes.
Giraffes can stand it more, no doubt:
Their bodies in; their necks still out

Inside Labor By Victor Riesel

If D-Minus suddenly springs across the land, chaos won't be more than a split second behind—for D-Minus is the insiders code for the moment of enemy massive nuclear attack on the U.S. mainland. To these insiders everything else is "limited war." And in the past few weeks there have been swift, efficient inner sanctum discussions of plans to keep the economic system going and give money and means of exchange some meaning at D-Minus plus one.

At that minute fully 40 per cent of our cities with their banks and records and vaults, could be going up in radioactive smoke. How then do the rest of us — or rest of you — pay for bread and milk?

How will wages and salaries be issued if the banks are blown, the credit system blasted to shreds and the whole monetary machinery disrupted?

What happens to wages, prices, new and enormous costs, of production amid vast disruption and labor-management feuds.

No one really knows. No one is an expert on D-Minus plus one or even plus 100. But no one wants to wait — and may God never permit it — until they are faced with a "hit" which has destroyed government operations here, or driven our national leaders into underground compartments with slashed communications.

Other federal departments will care for the human needs but the Department of Labor has been assigned to keep the economic system going.

THIS WAS discussed at two private meetings in the United States Labor Department — one on April 20 with business leaders and another on April 18 with a labor group headed by AFL-CIO second-in-command William Schnitzler, it only now can be reported.

It was a grim day the morning the nine businessmen gathered in a conference room not far from the secretary of labor's own office — for word came that Arthur Goldberg had been summoned by the President to an emergency cabinet meeting, the decisions of which could still bring a showdown and armed conflict.

The businessmen were briefed on four plans previously considered by those whose job it is to make certain that there is an economic system at D-Minus plus one. Most of these formulas meant substituting some new kind of economic system. For a while the planners had talked of substituting scrip for good old dollars.

THAT WAS DISCARDED. Then came the easy talk of a dictatorship, authoritarian rule, the control of supplies and the allocation and distribution by decree. This was discarded.

Then it had been thought that the entire system simply would be shut down, money temporarily declared useless and all supplies handled by existing regional governments. This was discarded.

Finally it was decided not to decide anything yet, really, but to seek the advice of business and labor on maintaining our very own system, even if part of it had been blasted by the first attack.

Purely Personal

By TRUMAN TWILL

I am shocked by the alacrity with which President Kennedy's boosters have become his critics, in some instances. No booster of his last fall, I am a booster of his now because he is going to be my president for four years whether his critics like him or not.

The lousy weather had me down until I received a four-page letter listing many bitter complaints ending with this: "I sure hope the sun shines tomorrow." After that, the lousy weather had me down the same as before but I could laugh about it.

The lady I share a bank account with couldn't go to sleep for worrying about the cosmonaut at Cape Canaveral and wondering what he was worrying about, which I decided might very well be whether the ships that were supposed to find him out would be where he wanted them to be when he needed finding.

I have missed only two trips to the polls in my life, starting the year I turned 21. One time, the only issue on the ballot was whether to let margarine manufacturers put in yellow coloring and this year the polls in our rural precinct weren't open because there was nothing to vote on.

The father of a friend of mine reports he found a taxi driver in a place in the Bahamas who never had heard of this part of the United States and knew only in a vague way about a place called New York City. I did not find this remarkable, however, because I never had heard of the place in the Bahamas where this fellow lived. To carry the matter further, I examined the new atlas and discovered that I never heard of most of the places where people live right here in the United States.

Whenever there's nothing better to discuss, I can always enjoy talking for another half hour about various breeds of dogs, reaching the conclusion that no one would settle for less than two dozen dogs of assorted breeds.

When grass begins to grow I remember how, in the era before power mowers, I had the teen-age chore of hand-mowing a lawn that today would justify a sitting-down mowing machine and a garden tractor with changeable tools for doing odd jobs around the place. And for this I demanded and was given by my old man the stipend of 50 cents a week, which included hand-trimming the flowerbeds, the driveway and the sidewalks.

For the first time since the latter days of the Truman administration, the word "mess" is being heard in descriptions of Washington.

No one yet really knows how. Perhaps a system of duplicate records, mints, credit systems. But one thing all knew — there must be instantaneous freezing of wages, prices, salaries and absolute freezing of everything.

Sort of a thermonuclear mormality — but frozen at the very second the D-Minus heat hits. The government people know that neither labor nor management are enamored with the thought of being forced to do anything by decree.

Management people quietly pointed out that there was nothing in the rule books yet that banned strikes or froze jobs so there would be no surges of labor from one area to another.

SOME ONE at the management conference asked how does one absorb the horrendous skyrocketing production and delivery costs — such as ripped-up transportation — if prices are frozen immediately at pre-D-Minus rates. Okay not to mark up goods on hand. But what about new production?

During the separate labor parley held two days earlier, the union chiefs wanted to know about the price freeze. It was pointed out that the Labor Department has regional offices and could clamp down on wages before the smoke cleared.

But the labor men observed there was no machinery to keep prices level. It would take two to three months to put such mechanism in gear — and meanwhile prices would go moon-wise.

No one in either session objected to the big freeze should dreaded D-Minus day blitz us. Both sides, each in their separate gatherings, wanted one thing for certain — they wanted a specific plan, now. And as they left with a prayer, they agreed to return to set rules by which all could keep a system of equity going, even as human nature recovered from the first shock of a D-Minus — may it never come.

The Silent Service

By VICTOR WILSON

CIA Director Can't Answer Criticism

Allen Welsh Dulles, the Central Intelligence Agency's beleaguered director, is probably the only official of his stature in this capital who has to take his lumps in absolute silence when foreign adventures go wrong.

He also has the dubious distinction of being the only top government executive here who gets absolutely no public credit when things in his area go right. Perhaps the President, and a very few others at the top may pat his shoulder in private for a success.

Mr. Dulles, however, is a philosophical man. After many years in the cloak and dagger field or on its periphery, he is more or less resigned to this situation, the nature of his business being what it is—secret.

In recent years, the Dulles head remained bowed, with lips buttoned, to criticism over alleged failure of his CIA to foresee, and give warning on, the leftist coup in Iraq Russia's Sputnik lofting the Suez invasion and the explosive consequences of a shot-down U2 spy plane on the eve of an Eisenhower-Khrushchev conference. (Only a few do, and should, know, whether Mr. Dulles did foresee and forewarn on these events).

Then came the Cuban fiasco.

THE HURRICANE of criticism over that one is still raging. Its result may well be the replacement of Mr. Dulles, whether the fault lies with him or not.

The Dulles' lips remain publicly sealed on Cuba. But the man is human. So the CIA released a news-tidbit which those in the know knew bore the hallmark—the style, if you will—of Allen Welsh Dulles.

The tidbit: The CIA had nothing, positively nothing, to do with the abortive French generals' rebellion in Algeria!

This was the head of the CIA blowing off just a whisp of frustrated steam—but on a topic that could do no harm.

How do you create a mold that will produce a man to be the top intelligence man for the earth's most powerful nation?

The directive of the National Security Council which created the CIA under the National Security Act of 1947, said this man should co-ordinate the intelligence activities of the several government departments concerned; advise the NSC on intelligence matters; make recommendations to the NSC; correlate and evaluate intelligence; provide "appropriate dissemination" of it to proper government agencies, and perform missions for the HSC.

The first thinking was that such a man should be from the military. Four military men were utilized between 1947 and 1953, when Mr. Dulles, a civilian, took over.

Mr. Dulles was one of the first to be told he would stay on when Mr. Kennedy was inaugurated Jan. 20, 1961.

FAMILY BACKGROUND and his own early upbringing would seem to have destined Mr. Dulles for diplomacy, not directing deeds of derring-do.

Mr. Dulles (born April 7, 1893, at Watertown, N.Y.), evinced his own interest in foreign affairs at 8, when, in 1901, he wrote a critique of the Boer War, then going on. He attended public schools at Auburn, N.Y., the Ecole Alsattienne, at Paris, and then won a BA at Princeton in 1914.

He spent a year in the Far East and India, teaching English for a while in an Indian school at Allahabad. He returned to Princeton, received an MA there in 1916.

The next few years found him serving at the World War I Paris Peace Conference the American Embassy at Berlin; on a special commission for postwar Germany, and as chief of the State Department's Near East desk.

Still later, he served his government at naval and disarmament conferences at Geneva. In 1916, after he won a law degree at George Washington University, the State Department offered him the legation counselor post at Peiping at $8,000 a year, a salary he was already earning.

MR. DULLES thought he was worth more but his superiors didn't, so he quit. There was quite a bit of newspaper editorial discussion about low diplomatic pay, a topic still being discussed, with little done about it.

Deciding that law was his best bet, Mr. Dulles joined the New York law firm of Sullivan & Cromwell, of which his eldest brother, the late John Foster Dulles, later secretary of state, was a partner. One might say this step led Allen Dulles to intelligence work.

It happened that the law firm had many European financial clients and Mr. Dulles helped service them and engaged in lots of foreign travel.

When the late Gen. William J. (Wild Bill) Donovan headed the Office of Strategic Services (OSS) after America entered World War II, he wanted particularly men who knew European finance and "strategic areas." Allen Dulles was a natural candidate.

It was a good choice. His exploits as an OSS type in Switzerland and Italy are still talked of with awe and the rewards included the American Medal of Merit, a presidential citation, the Medal of Freedom, Belgium's Leopold Cross, and France's Legion of Honor.

Mr. Dulles has been married for 41 years to the former Clover Todd, and they have two daughters and a son.

Expense Account Doom

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—The upper classes haven't faced such a threat since the French revolution. It isn't the end of the world, but it may mean the end of a way of life for the favored few.

It brings the threat of doom to America's greatest postwar aristocracy.

I refer to the Kennedy administration's proposals to cut down on plush "expense account living." If Congress adopts this program, many expenditures now allowable as tax deductions no longer will be.

Salesmen no longer will be permitted tax-free to wine and dine and entertain prospective clients—and themselves—at posh parties, night clubs, theaters, high-priced restaurants and company-owned hunting and fishing lodges.

The proposed program also would limit "business gifts" to $10 a person a year, daily "business entertainment" allowances to between $4 and $7 a person, and "business travel" expenses to $30 a day.

Nothing has stirred the industrial world so much since the invention of the typewriter.

There'll be some startling changes if the program really becomes law.

For example: Businessmen will go back to closing deals in their offices instead of on the golf course.

Cirrhosis of the liver will decline. Nobody will be able to entertain himself into cirrhosis under the new expense account schedule.

Wives who have made a practice of serving all the family meals at the country club—with the government picking up most of the tab—will have to stay home and learn how to cook.

Can't you imagine a grandchild of the future asking:

"Tell me again about how life was in the old days, Grandpa, when everybody lived on an expense account except the government."

DiSalle Submits New Proposals

Auto Tag Revenue Measure Is Vetoed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Republican legislative leaders are trying to muster enough votes to override Gov. Michael V. DiSalle's veto of a bill to give local governments more highway funds from auto license tag revenue.

The governor's veto message Thursday stated that the bill would take needed revenue from the Ohio Highway Department. And, he added, if highway money matched by the federal government is taken into account, the bill would "deprive the citizens of this state of $32 million in badly needed highway activity."

In lieu of the bill, DiSalle proposed:

1. A legislative commission to appraise needs for highways funds at all government levels during the next year, and to recommend to the next legislature the means for meeting those needs.

2. A stopgap device to meet needs in the next two years by giving local governments about $19 million from fines, fees from drivers' licenses, dealers' licenses, certificates of title, transfers of ownership and registration, duplicate plates and certificates, and special license plate reservations, and including a $10 million one-shot advance on auto registration fee money.

The governor commented that his proposal "would offer a reasonable compromise" to the vetoed bill.

The Redstone throbbed to life after a countdown directed by former German rocketeer Dr. Kurt Debus.

Debus was assisted by Dr. Werner Von Braun, head of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration space flight laboratory.

Flew Free Course

The slender rocket, stretching 83 feet tall with the capsule and 15½-foot escape tower on top, flew a true course as it knifed into a clear sky under the anxious eyes of thousands who crammed into missileland to watch as America for the first time committed a man into space.

Millions of Shepard's countrymen watched on live television. As the missile accelerated, forces six times the pull of gravity pushed the astronaut against his couch.

At 141 seconds after launch, the capsule separated and the escape tower — designed to jerk the capsule free and parachute it safely to earth in case of trouble — was jettisoned.

Automatic controls then flipped the nine-foot tall capsule over 180 degrees so the blunt heat shield base led the way, with the pilot riding backward.

About four minutes after launch, Shepard tumbled, as if over a precipice, into a weird and weightless world—an exhilarating experience that lasted about five minutes.

In View of Thousands

Riding a column of orange exhaust fire, the reliable Redstone rose into a hazy sky in view of thousands watching from nearby beaches and untold numbers of others over the nation with eyes glued to television screens.

As the rocket blasted off, two F106 jet planes zipped over the cape. At the controls were two other members of the astronaut team, Walter Schirra and Scott Carpenter.

They were to observe the launch from above and then speed to the recovery area to watch operations there.

The rocket shot into a large cloud hanging over the Cape briefly, then the exhaust flame diminished until it became a pinpoint in the sky.

A puff 140 seconds later indicated the booster burned out as planned.

The astronaut reported the fuel system was OK.

The periscope came out and the ship was moving into proper altitude.

At the time of launch, Shepard had been in the space cabin four hours, 16 minutes, all but 52 minutes in isolation.

Launch Held Up

The launch originally was scheduled for 7 a.m. (EST) but was held up several times for weather and technical reasons. The pilot reported he was switching to manual control. The pilot has manual control of the capsule. Everything still OK.

Shepard said "What a beautiful view."

The pilot reported three to 4-10 cloud cover obscuring the view up to Cape Hatteras.

At 2 minutes and 10 seconds the medical monitor at the control center reported the pilot's condition appears to be excellent.

The pilot is beginning the process of firing his reverse rockets. "Everything very smooth," he reported.

The No. 1 reverse thrust rocket has fired and the second and third retro rockets fired.

The pilot is preparing to jettison the retrorocket gear. Control center reports excellent voice communication with pilot and medical reports OK.

The retrorocket packet attached to the capsule has been jettisoned. The Mission Mercury Control Center reported the mission was 6 minutes and 40 seconds old and Shepard reporting in normal procedure of test pilot — automatic control system operating properly.

The spacecraft is beginning to enter the atmosphere and pilot reports beginning of gravity pressure. He is now up to 9 Gs.

"OK," he reported.

Peak gravity forces now but still reporting OK.

All data of the control center is reported excellent.

Pilot reports he is at 30,000 feet on the way down.

The pilot is talking to Grand Bahama Island and they are reading him.

First parachute out.

Pilot reports all systems in the capsule OK.

Control center says pilot OK as he approaches the Atlantic.

The main parachute now has been deployed.

The capsule is now floating to the water 660 seconds from liftoff. Shepard says he is at 7,000 feet and coming in for landing.

Communications at this point are reporting "little rough." Control center people said they expected this.

Recovery forces downrange report seeing capsule.

The pilot reported he is coming down 30 feet a second.

The control ships reported that the capsule has landed and recovery crafts dispatched.

A helicopter took off and circled the area and is now moving in on it.

The recovery forces reported that helicopter has lifted the capsule into a normal upright position.

Shepard reports by voice communication he is in contact with recovery craft and he "OK."

'Eternity'

His dressing finished, Shepard was strapped into a harness and then he climbed into a form-fitting couch like that inside the capsule. There he lay, looking like a man sitting in a chair that had been tipped on its back.

After the astronaut closed his visor and hoses were hooked up, Schmitt stepped to a control panel and ran the pressure in the suit to five pounds per square inch.

The suit swelled, Shepard moved his arms and flexed his fingers. Schmitt had on a head set and he and the astronaut sealed inside his helmet connected via a microphone connection as they checked for suit leaks.

All was ready, and Shepard clumped along the long gallery, down a flight of stairs to the van outside. With him he carried a portable air conditioner to cool his suit until he could be hooked into the capsule's cooling system. This unit is called the "black box," although it's actually gray.

Shepard strode quickly along the van looking straight ahead. He was followed by Virgil I. Grissom, the standby or third pilot, and the doctors.

The small crowd made no demonstration as Shepard walked by. The van left for the launch pad at 4:05 a.m.

It arrived at 4:26 a.m. under escort of two security cars.

On the pad, about 100 men were working quietly, dressed in an assortment of construction-type hats of varying colors.

The Redstone rocket stood in the gantry under bright lights and in the glare of two banks of searchlights.

The lower half of the rocket was frosted over with residue of liquid oxygen fuel being pumped into the tanks. Clouds of vapor smoked around the base of the missile.

About the time the astronaut started for the pad a "hold" was ordered at launch time minus 140 minutes to allow the accelerated procedure to catch up with the normal time schedule which called for launch around 7 a.m.

On arriving at the pad, Shepard remained in the van for 49 minutes while final preparations were made on the capsule on top of the rocket.

Astronaut Leroy G. Cooper, whose post is in the blockhouse next to the launch pad, entered the van and briefed Shepard on the condition of the rocket.

The van was parked within 10 feet of the gantry.

At 5:15 a.m., Shepard climbed down the four steps from the van, paused briefly, leaned back shading his eyes and peered up at the top of the rocket where the capsule was sitting.

Accompanied by Grissom and Douglas, he walked the 25 feet to the elevator and entered. At this point a wave of applause passed across the launch pad and there was some cheering from the men who had been working toward this day.

The elevator then rose and at 5:18 a.m. Shepard was entering the capsule.

Preceding him to the capsule was backup pilot Glenn.

Starting about 3:30 a.m. Glenn helped in the final checkout of the capsule and its system, climbing in and out from time to time.

Col. Powers reported that he had found the atmosphere in the astronaut's quarters business like and routine. A NASA official said that before Shepard started out, he turned to his special nurse, Lt. Delores O'Hara: "Here I go, Dee."

The dawn was just breaking when Shepard rode to the top of the rocket. The night had been a beautiful one with a big moon and stars shining clearly.

Shepard's face showed no expression as he peered up at the rocket. There was no sign of emotion.

The launch pad and rocket stood thin and straight in the morning sunlight. The "cherry picker," an inverted L-shaped yellow steel tower affair was resting with its forward end close to the capsule.

The "cherry picker" is a device to remove Shepard from the capsule in case of trouble after the gantry is taken away.

Shepard's wait was extended when NASA ordered a "hold" for a look at the weather. Broken clouds had moved into the area as the countdown reached 15 minutes before launch.

A space agency official said at this point that the plan was for the astronaut to remain in the capsule during this delay. As of 7:55 a.m. he had been in the capsule 2 hours and 37 minutes.

Castro

ings, such as the Sports Palace and the Blanquita Theater.

At the Blanquita, there were between 6,000 and 7,500 prisoners, jammed into the auditorium, without any arrangements for food or sanitation. The only food available was that brought by relatives of persons held there.

Midway through the first week of their detention, prisoners were screaming for food, and fighting their way through a litter of filth and excrement for a chance to use the few toilets. Many became ill. At least three typhoid cases were reported.

Reports from those who saw it in person say that at one point the prisoners tried to rise up against their militia guards. Several shots were fired into the crowd. Two prisoners were wounded, but this failed to quiet the detainees.

Then bloodhounds and police dogs were paraded across the stage, and the militiamen threatened to turn the dogs on the prisoners if they failed to quiet down.

The prisoners attempted another uprising, overwhelming some militia guards and seizing their weapons. But later young Castro militiamen entered the Blanquita to serve as guards, and met no trouble. Finally, in desperation, the detainees threatened to burn the theater and everything in it if they were not given food and some decent sanitation.

Shortly afterward Castro authorities began freeing some of those under detention and taking others elsewhere.

Oregon Hiker Reaches Salem On Goodwill Hike to Arabia

Pure stamina and willpower walked through Salem yesterday afternoon in the person of Harry Johnson of Salem, Oregon.

The 48-year-old hiker, carrying only two knapsacks, a homemade walking stick and a crude sign, ambled into the city at 2:30 p.m. from Deerfield on a leg of a journey that has seen him walk approximately 2,800 miles across the country thus far.

Johnson said he began the trek from Florence, Oregon, Jan. 7 and plans to be in New York City by May 20. From New York he plans to work his way across the Atlantic Ocean and Mediterranean by boat to the northern coast of Africa, where he will begin hiking again across the Arabian Desert to Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, an additional 1,000 miles.

Purpose of the walking feat, Johnson said, is to create some good will between foreign countries and the United States, and also to help him secure work in a foreign field. He said he would like to work in the Saudi Arabia area since he has a command of the language there.

Johnson is carrying two bottles of Pacific Ocean water, one which he says will be delivered to Mayor Robert Wagner of New York City from the mayor of Florence, Ore., E. A. Davidson, and the other to King Saud of Saudi Arabia.

He said he has averaged 30 miles per day thus far on the journey, and worn out one pair of shoes. The most mileage he has covered in one 24-hour period was 56 miles in Wyoming.

Johnson said the trip has been pleasant except for his walk through a raging snowstorm near Laramie, Wyoming, and another heavy snowfall in Indiana.

He said he hopes to reach Pittsburgh for the weekend.

Reds' Joey Jay Hurls 4-0 One-Hitter Against Phils

Single In First Spoils No-Hitter

Giants, Braves Cop Other NL Contests

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer
Joey Jay pitched a one-hit shut-out giving up a first-inning single by Johnny Callison—and allowed only two men to reach base as the Cincinnati Reds defeated Philadelphia 4-0 Thursday night for their fifth straight victory. San Francisco padded its National League lead to a full game over idle Pittsburgh by beating the Chicago Cubs 9-3.

Joe Adcock's bases-loaded home run gave Milwaukee a 10-6 victory over Los Angeles in 10 innings in the only other game scheduled in the NL.

Jay, 25, is a Little League graduate who had a 24-24 record, including a two-hitter and one three-hitter, in seven seasons with Milwaukee. He was traded to the Reds for shortstop Roy McMillan last December.

The Reds scored in two-run bursts in the first and third innings off Art Mahaffey (2-2), who allowed seven hits and five walks.

Adcock's slam, the eighth of his career, capped a five-run 10th off loser Jim Golden (1-1). John Roseboro homered for the Dodgers, who blew a 4-1 lead behind starter Don Drysdale.

Carl Willey (1-0), the fourth Milwaukee pitcher to follow starter Bob Buhl, won it.

A five-run sixth inning gave it to the Giants, who came from behind on Orlando Cepeda's two-run single off loser Glen Hobbie (1-3). Sam Jones (3-1) went all the way for the Giants.

Steubenville Cops Meet

United, Beaver Boys Sparkle at Toronto

Beaver Local's Mike Durbin, who all of a sudden has blossomed into one of the district's top broad jumpers, set a new meet record and a new stadium record at the Toronto Relays last night.

The lanky Beaver senior got off a winning leap of 21 feet last night. Durbin started flirting with the 20-foot mark in the broad jump just about a week ago. Before that he had trouble reaching 18 feet.

IN A TRIANGULAR meet at Salem on April 28, Durbin failed to place in the broad jump which was finally won by Salem's Dave Capel at 18-1½.

When asked what he has done to improve so much since the Salem meet, Durbin commented, "I added wings." He jumped 20 feet in a dual meet earlier this week.

Beaver Local placed 11th in the Toronto Relays with 8½ points. Steubenville Big Red won the team title with 42 3-5 points. Wells-burg, W. Va., was a close second with 41 markers.

Wellsville finished fifth and United placed eighth with 11 3-5 points.

United's Paul DeVille took a first in the 440 and remains undefeated this season in that event. DeVille was clocked in 53.4, breaking the old United school record of 54 flat which he set in a dual meet last week at Leetonia. DeVille previously had set the school record two years ago as a sophomore.

JIM STURGEON of United picked up a third in the mile. Bill Leatherberry tied for fourth in the high jump. Dan Jenkins and Bruce Hoyt of the Eagles both scored in the 220-yard dash.

Wellsville's Bob Kiggins tied for first in the high jump with a leap of 5-10. He just missed clearing 6-0. Bill Hickman of Wellsville took a first in the low hurdles with his time of 22.4.

ALLIANCE STATE ST. Takes 1st

Salem Junior High Places 2nd in Meet

Alliance State St. Junior High nipped the Salem freshmen 62 1-3 to 58 1-3 in a triangular track and field meet Thursday afternoon at Reilly Stadium. Alliance Stanton finished last with 27 1-3 points.

State St. topped eight firsts, Salem won five events and Stanton captured one.

There were three double winners. Bill Carter of Salem won the mile and the high jump; Connell of State St. captured both the 100 and 220-yard dashes; and Blaser of State St. came out on top in the 440 and broad jump.

Carter's winning time in the mile was 5:14.8. Salem also got a second in this event when John Tarleton followed Carter across the line in 5:17.7.

Carter was a surprise winner in the high jump. He cleared 5-2. Other Salem firsts were chalked up by Jim Anderson in the shot, 39-5½; Tom Bauman in the discus, 100-11; and Barton in the pole vault, 8-0.

Bauman set a new Salem record in the 220-yard dash although he placed second to Connell of State St. who zipped the distance in a very fast 24.3. Bauman was clocked in 24.5. The old Salem freshman record was 25.8.

Bauman also took a second in the broad jump with his leap of 17-1. Blaser of State St. won the event at 17-7.

Metzgar, Scott Star For United Jr. High

The United Junior High School heavyweight and lightweight track squads posted convincing wins over their counterparts from Columbiana High in a meet yesterday afternoon at Columbiana.

The United heavyweights won 52½ to 20½ while the Eagle lightweight came through with a 49 to 24 decision.

Heavyweights Gene Metzgar and Dyer Scott were standouts for the United aggregation. Both are 8th graders. Metzgar flew 17-9 to win the broad jump. Scott got off a toss of 40-2½ in the shot put.

Besides his victory in the broad jump, Metzgar also took a first in the 440 which he ran in 1:08.

United Junior High will join Beaver, Fairfield-Waterford and Salineville in the Columbiana County Junior High meet at Columbiana on May 17. The Eagles have a dual meet scheduled at Salem against the Quaker Junior High teams on May 25.

Fires 6 Under Par In First Round

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS (AP)—Good looking Jay Hebert, one of the most popular players in professional golf, led the parade into the second round of the $52,000 Tournament of Champions today.

Hebert, who admittedly is still taking lessons on the skills of proper shot making, demonstrated he has studied well when he fired a 6-under par 66 in the first round.

Playing against a select field of 25 rivals and bucking shifting winds that blew up to 40 miles an hour, Hebert toured the par 36-36—72 Desert Inn Country Club course Thursday in 33-33-66.

So today he held a lead of one stroke over his fellow pros for the $10,000 top money. The 72-hole event winds up Sunday.

Pressing Hebert at 67 were three other seasoned performers—Tommy Bolt, Doug Ford and Julius Boros.

And tied at 68 were Sam Snead and Bill Casper Jr., and if they weren't enough to give the pace setter cause for worry, the 69 bracket included Arnold Palmer, Art Wall Jr., and Stan Leonard.

South Africa's Gary Player, the 1961 Masters champion, and Doug Sanders posed a threat at 70.

Five players were tied at 71 in the group of 16 which bettered par. They were Gene Littler, Dow Finsterwald, Bill Collins, Don Fairfield and Bill Johnston.

Hebert, a native of Lafayette, La., candidly says he is still learning things about the game of golf.

His round Thursday included two eagles and three birdies—and thanks to the blustery wind, he started out poorly in his tee shots.

But at the end he had required only 30 putts and had missed but two greens.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—First round scores in golf's $52,000 Tournament of Champions:

Jay Hebert 33-33-66

Tommy Bolt 34-34-67

Doug Ford 33-34-67

Sam Snead 35-33-68

Bill Casper Jr. 35-33-68

Arnold Palmer 35-34-69

Art Wall Jr. 34-35-69

Stan Leonard 34-35-69

Gary Player 36-34-70

Doug Sanders 36-34-70

Dow Finsterwald 34-37-71 (tied with four others)

Junior Baseball Loop Managers to Meet

A meeting of managers and commissioners in all classes of the Salem Junior Baseball League will be held at 1:30 p.m. Sunday at the American Legion Home Leagues Secretary Glenn Whitehill reports.

Purpose of the meeting, Whitehill says, is to discuss schedules and make plans for the opening of the 1961 season.

Cards' Star Just Getting Rest

Musial Riding Bench, But Not for Long, Manager Says

By CHUCK CAPALDO
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—Except for two fruitless pinchhitting appearances, veteran Stan Musial has been riding the St. Louis Cardinals' bench since April 26.

Is his benching indefinite? Like last year when he sat and fidgeted for a month starting May 27, leading many to believe the great hitter's career had come to an inglorious end?

Not at all, says Redbird Manager Solly Hemus.

"He'll be playing again in the near future."

Last year, Hemus explained, he started Musial, 40, a few games at a time and then gave him a rest.

"Stan was in and out and it didn't work," Hemus said. "In spring training I decided to try a different system, play him two or three weeks at a time and then rest him for a week or so, not just play him here and there."

Hemus mentioned two other factors which influenced his decision not to play Musial in the Cards' last five games.

One was the cold weather, which has raised hobs with attendance as well as muscles. The other was a need to see the Cards' young outfielders such as Charley James and Don Taussig in action before the May 10 cut-down date.

Musial, never happy to be sitting on the bench, vows "I'll be in there again."

Annual Fray May Cease This Year

By FRITZ HOWELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio's high school football coaches are ready to put up a fight to keep their North-South all-star game as an annual fixture.

The Rebel-Yankee fray, scheduled Aug. 11 at Canton, will die after this year unless it receives official sanction of the Ohio High School Athletic Association. The NCAA has ruled that boys participating in unsanctioned all-star games will lose a year of college eligibility, so approval by the state board of control is mandatory if the contest is to continue.

The board of directors of the more than 1,100 scholastic mentors here for Ohio State's annual two-day grid clinic argued far into Thursday night on means to persuade the board to grant approval. The state group has put its O.K. on this year's fray, but declined to approve games after this year.

Cage Coaches In Same Fix

Basketball coaches, in the same fix relative to their all-star game slated June 17 at Cuyahoga Falls, are cooperating with the football mentors in trying to sway the state board.

Dave Martin, football coach at Cuyahoga Falls, said he could see no reason for banning the games since "all the participating boys have finished their high school careers, no school time is lost, no one is hurt, and the benefits to the boys are enormous. Many boys, as a result of their appearance in the all-star games, have been given college scholarships they would not have received otherwise."

Just what the coaches intend to do was left up in the air—but one possibility is to ask the state board to request a vote on the matter by the state's high school principals. Such a referendum could override the state board.

At Thursday night's session Bron Bacevich of Cincinnati Roger Bacon was elected president of the football coaches, succeeding George Hardie of Youngstown Woodrow Wilson. Carl (Ducky) Schroeder of Massillon was named secretary-treasurer for the 15th straight year.

In balloting today the coaches will name Martin as first vice president, and choose between Glenn (Tiger) Ellison of Middletown and D. L. DeCenzo of Westerville as second vice president. Directors in eight of the state's 16 districts also will be selected.

Jim Robinson of Canton, director of the all-star game, said the Southern coaching staff would be made up of Jim Eby of Dayton Colonel White, Bob Wion of Martins Ferry, Jim Dudding of Jackson, and Jacques Laughlin of Harrison.

Robinette On North Staff

The Northern coaches are Tony Mason of Niles, Ralph Robinette of Youngstown Rayen, Bill Wilkins of Shelby, and Glenn Smith of Fremont St. Joseph.

Eby, who took over the head Rebel job when Lou Juillierat of Troy moved into the collegiate field at Findlay, requested permission of the directors to install his own quarterback on the South squad. His plea was turned down, the board saying all all-star squad vacancies must be filled by alternates picked in the December voting.

Longden Seeks 2nd Victory In Derby

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Johnny Longden, who has been in the winner's circle more times than any other jockey, is leaving nothing to chance in a bid for his second Kentucky Derby victory.

At 54, an age when others would gladly retire to the rocking chair or shift to a less hazardous occupation, Johnny is as active as his youthful rivals who'll join him in piloting 15 finely-tuned 3-year-old horses over 1¼ miles at Churchill Downs Saturday in quest of fame and fortune.

Longden, winner of 5,509 races in his 34-year career, will be astride the well regarded Four-and-Twenty when the field breaks from the barrier at 4:30 p. m. Eastern Standard Time. Four-and-Twenty is the better liked half of the Canadian entry from the Alberta Ranches of Frank McMahon and Max Bell. The other half is Flutterby and both are trained by Johnny's son, Vance, 31.

Carry Back, three times conqueror of Crozier in Florida last winter, remained the 5-2 choice. But Crozier rapidly picking up support off his blazing 1:34 3-5 Derby Trial mile Tuesday was held at 3-1.

Sherluck (6-1), Ethel D. Jacobs' stretch-running Dr. Miller (10-1) and Globemaster (12-1) were the only other horses given much consideration.

If all 15 parade to the post the race will gross $163,000 with $120,500 going to the winner.

Dodgers Get Farrell In Player Swap

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Los Angeles Dodgers have obtained relief pitcher Dick Farrell in a trade with Philadelphia, but Dodger Manager Walter Alton isn't making any predictions about how much Farrell will help his club's pennant chances.

"We'll have to wait and see about this," Alton said Thursday night after the Dodgers arrived in town for a three-game series against Pittsburgh.

The Dodgers Thursday sent outfielder Don Demeter and infielder Charlie Smith to the Phillies for Farrell and infielder Joe Koppe.

Alton explained, "We needed a little more help in the bullpen. It has been a little overworked. Ed Roebuck is out and we want Larry Sherry to have more help."

Farrell, a right-hander, had a 10-6 record in 59 appearances with the Phillies in 1960. He was credited with 15 additional saves and posted a 2.71 earned run average.

In Philadelphia, John Quinn, general manager of the Phillies said, "Demeter is one of the finest fielding centerfielders around and he might have 20 home runs in him."

He added Smith has "real good power and he may be the answer to our third base problems."

Demeter, 25, missed most of last year because of a fractured wrist. He hit .274 and had nine home runs.

Smith hit .322 and 20 home runs at Spokane.

Jerry Lucas of Ohio State set a school record when he tallied 48 points in a Big Ten game against Michigan State in February.

Mossi Tosses 2-Hit Shutout For Tigers Against Nats

Detroit southpaw Don Mossi won his third without defeat by pitching a two-hitter for a 6-0 decision at Washington Thursday night. That kept the Tigers in a tie with New York for the American League lead after the Yankees had beaten Minnesota 5-2 in an afternoon game.

In the only other AL game scheduled, Baltimore defeated Los Angeles 8-7 in 13 innings on Ron Hansen's two-run single.

Mossi, 31, walked three and struck out five in the best performance of his eight-year career, which has included a trio of three-hitters. He had a no-hit game until Gene Green singled with two out in the seventh inning. The other hit, also a single, was by Willie Tasby with two out in the ninth.

The Tigers handed winless Benjy Daniels his third defeat.

Mickey Mantle blasted his ninth home run, tops in the majors, for the Yankees, but it was a three-run first inning that sent the defending champs to their seventh victory in the last eight games. Two walks, Mantle's single and an infield out scored the first two runs and Elston Howard's single brought in the clincher. Whitey Ford (4-1) was the winner, but withdrew due to the effects of a one-hit, shutout mop-up over the last three frames. Jim Kaat (1-2) was the loser.

Hansen drove in four runs for the Orioles, who twice came from three runs behind, and triggered the ninth-inning rally with a one-on homer. His winning single, off reliever Ned Garver (0-2), followed a walk and a double by Gus Triandos, who also belted a two-run homer. Reliever Hoyt Wilhelm won his fourth.

TRAINING TRAIN—Saburo Yokomizo works out with a remote-controlled pacemaker in Tokyo's National Stadium. The Japanese adopted this electronically-operated "rabbit" from greyhound racing. The modernistic train speaks through a walkie-talkie system. It provides a constant link between coach and athlete as it runs just ahead of the runner on a miniature railway parallel to the track.

Senators Invade for 4 Games

Tribe's Flu-Hit Regulars May Return To Action

CLEVELAND (AP)—Two of the Cleveland Indians' regular outfielders are expected back in action tonight when the Tribe opens a four-game home series with the Washington Senators.

The probable returnees are centerfielder Jim Piersall and leftfielder Tito Francona, but the status of rightfielder Willie Kirkland is in doubt.

If Kirkland is out, Manager Jimmie Dykes can use Joe Morgan, Don Dillard or Walter Bond, who filled in for the regulars—sidelined by the flu—during the two-game series with Chicago.

Southpaw Johnny Antonelli (0-2) will make his fourth try for his first American League victory. He will be opposed by Washington's Ed Hobaugh, who has an 0-1 record.

Antonelli pitched well against the Senators in his first start April 16 in Washington, but was lifted after seven innings with the Nats leading 2-0. Cleveland went on to win, 3-2.

"Antonelli looked pretty much the same against us as he did in the National League last year," said Mickey Vernon, the Washington manager who was a coach with the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1960.

"He finesses you, cutes you. He knows how to pitch, but he doesn't have that real fast one anymore."

The Indians have a three-game winning streak, their longest of the season, after beating the White Sox here Tuesday and Wednesday nights. They were idle Thursday.

Second baseman Johnny Temple, leading the majors with a .422 average, takes an 18-game hitting streak into tonight's game.

The Indians Thursday assigned Steve Hamilton, a 25-year-old left-hander, to their Salt Lake City farm club on 24-hour recall. This makes room on the roster for Chuck Essegian, utility outfielder acquired Wednesday from Kansas City.

McDougald Signs As Scout For New York NL Team

NEW YORK (AP) — Gil McDougald is ready to start a new career as a baseball scout at the age of 32. The former infielder who quit the New York Yankees because he didn't want to travel has hooked on with the New York team in the National League.

McDougald is reunited with his old boss, George Weiss, president of the new club. He will scout the central and north New Jersey area, concentrating on high schools and colleges.

"We checked with Commissioner Ford Frick," said McDougald. "He said I was on the Yankees' voluntary retired list but was under no obligation as long as I was not a player, coach or manager."

When McDougald left the Yankees he said he didn't want to travel and also wanted to devote more time to his budding building maintenance business.

"My business work is mostly at night," he explained. "For the present I can handle both jobs. I have been watching a lot of games because I like baseball. I figure I might as well be scouting as just looking at the games. This way all my travel will be in the state of New Jersey and I can get home every night."

"I think I had a couple of years left in me as a player," McDougald said. "but the rest of it would have been the hard, rough way. Maybe hitting .270, .260, .250 or maybe even lower. I wanted to get out when things were still going pretty good."

Leo Wachsmith went over the magic 600 mark last night at Saxon Lanes where he turned in a 606-231-207 while bowling in the Sportsman League.

Joe Vogelhuber hit 600 right on the nose. His high single was a 227.

Other high scores in the Sportsman loop yesterday included Ray Thompson, 586-215; Bill Galchick, 585-200; George Nannah, 581-222; George Hardy, 566; and Norm Flack, 558.

In single games, Walt Thomas notched a 229; Ray Stanley, 224; and Jim Graybell, 214. Riley Construction swept the board in team scoring with a 2858-1008.

In the Thursday night Ladies' League, Betty Chamberlain set the pace with a 528-183. Stella Pridon rolled 526-185; Connie Starbuck, 514-188; Jean Leider, 504-202; and Stella Loop, 492.

Fisher News led the team scoring with a 2308-801. Konnerth's Jewelers posted a 2158 for second place.

McCulloch's

GOING ON
McCULLOCH'S

HAVE YOU SEEN the violets, the daisies, the roses, the forget-me-nots? No, it is not just wishful thinking, nor a desire to rush things a little—it's a timely surprise for you if you have not visited our store lately.

ANOTHER PHASE of the complete redecorating of McCulloch's has just been finished. Along the walls have been painted the names of the various departments, each one large and clear, each a different color and each with its own particular touch.

THERE IS A LOVELY violet motif for Cosmetics for instance, soft rose for Lingerie, pert daisies for House Dresses. The Sub-Deb department is depicted with those two vital necessities of that age, the phone and a soft drink.

SPORTSWEAR HAS as its appropriate theme a rustic brown fence complete with rooster and shining sun. A little more sedate are the beige and brown tones of the script in Ready-To-Wear.

WE ARE VERY happy with the over-all effect. We think it's delightful and charming and we sincerely hope you, our customers, will too. It's a pleasant thing to be able to announce that this is all the work of a talented Salem artist, Miss Rosemarie Sulea.

A WALK UP AND down the aisles is a veritable shot in the arm these days. After the days and days of rain, the sun is shining through on our fresh spring and summer stocks—a garden of fine fabrics; a bouquet of gay colors.

THERE IS A magic about fabrics these days—words like Arnel - Acrilan - Ban-Lon - Dacron - Fortrel enter and our lives become much easier. Clothes have become so simple to care for—you scarcely press many of them. Full pleated skirts can go driving now—every pleat keeps in place. Smooth little sheaths can go from desk to date, fresh and wrinkle free; vivid new printed voiles are going dancing—they do not crush or wilt. Vacation dresses unpack uncrumpled.

A WARDROBE for mother and father and the children to spend wonderful vacation hours is no longer a chore to pick so as to keep the luggage at a minimum—these magic fibers make packing a delight. Mother knows that the family will be impeccably well groomed enroute, during the vacation and even the return trip—thanks to synthetics.

SPEAKING OF Mother—don't forget her special day is May 14. The store has some lovely selections in every department. Perhaps a cool, easy to care for cotton housecoat would please her; an Arnel jersey dress, pretty and practical; or some utterly beautiful lingerie or some matched jewelry to brighten her plain basic; a cologne; a net "whimsy" for her hair.

COME IN and visit us.

Ann Landers

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: This may sound like a stupid question but how can I stop my mother-in-law from shopping for me? She has picked out draperies, lamps, party dresses for my children and she even bought my Easter hat.

The hat is what really teed me off. I had in mind a white straw sailor to go with my navy suit but she selected a basket style which looks like a crazy, mixed-up garden. To set the record straight, these are not gifts, they are all charged to my account.

My husband says if I criticize her taste she will be offended. He also thinks it's nice that she has something to do with her spare time. I say if she's looking for something to do with her spare time, she could sit with my kids and give me an afternoon off so I could go shopping and buy what I like.

How about this? Am I right or do you feel I should say nothing and keep the peace?—JEAN.

Dear Jean: I see no reason why you should sit silently by and let your mother-in-law charge things you don't want to your account.

Somewhere along the line you must develop the maturity to hand back the purchases and say, "This is lovely, dear, but it's not what I had in mind." Then ask her if she'd be good enough to return it for you. After awhile she'll get the pitch.

Browbeaten Wife

Dear Ann: My husband and I are the same age, 22. I feel like 100. We've been married almost four years and we have two children.

He never gives me any money to buy clothes. He says I don't need clothes because I don't go any place. Well, he's right about that. But he goes plenty.

Every Friday he takes off for fishing or hunting—whatever is in season. He spends money on equipment, motors, boats, anything he wants. If I get mad he says I have a rotten temper and he even has slapped me a few times.

What can I do to get him to treat me like a wife?—BROWBEATEN.

Dear Brow: According to my arithmetic, you grabbed this bargain when he was 18 years old. It's no wonder you're having trouble. He wasn't ready to settle down and he's proving it.

Insist that he go with you to a marriage counselor or a clergyman and get this mess back in the track. He's bound by law to support you and it's time someone reminded him of his moral and legal responsibility.

Retraction

Dear Ann: Your recent advice that a man of questionable character seek out a single girl or a nice widow as a means of breaking away from a woman of doubtful background moves me to write.

The single girls can speak for themselves; I speak as a widow. And since "the woods are full of 'em," as Ann Landers says, I'll bet many of them will agree with me.

We widows who have come through a period of shattering grief and learned how to compromise and live alone are not interested in starting a training school for ne'er-do-wells.

If we had a good marriage, we wouldn't dream of insulting the memory of a fine husband by letting a bum succeed him. If our marriage was not a good one we know how rough such a life can be and we wouldn't make THAT mistake again.—WIDOW.

Dear Widow: I've had the same response from many widows. You've persuaded me I was dead wrong.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Salem News, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The Doctor Says

By DR. H. T. HYMAN

Extra Feedings Increase Milk Supply

Q — "I am 23 years old and the mother of a two-year-old boy. I am husky and strong and made both the basketball and hockey teams while I was in high school. But I was unable to nurse my son and after we put him on a cow's milk formula he broke out with a terrible rash on his face that lasted for months, even after we put him on a goat milk formula. I'm going to have my second child in a few months and I don't want to go through that experience again. Is there anything I can do to increase my milk supply? Is it true that I can get hormone shots like those given cows?"

Dr. H. T. Hyman

A — I don't know about hormone shots to increase milk secretion in cattle but I do know there is no generally approved product for use in humans. However, a recent study in the Journal of the American Academy of Pediatrics may furnish a much simpler and happier solution to the writer's problem. Briefly stated, a team of doctors from the University of Mississippi Medical School observed the effects of changed frequencies on mother's milk production. What they discovered was just about the opposite of what you might have predicted. "When the number of feedings and the total nursing time were decreased, significantly LESS milk was obtained by the baby."

"But when the number of feedings and the total nursing time were increased, the amount of milk obtained by the baby did not change for 48 hours, but then it rose to the control level observed at the beginning of the study"—that is to say, before noting the effects of decreasing the number of feedings and the total nursing time.

From their studies, the doctors recommend that mothers who wish to increase their milk supply should feed their infants two to three EXTRA times each day. I hope my correspondent will take heed of this fascinating study. Indeed, the more you think about the results, the surer you are that they're correct in their conclusions. I rather imagine any experienced "wet nurse" could
